In addition to the traditional SmartScreen package with its comprehensive schemes of work, PowerPoints, handouts, etc, which cover all units in the qualification, City & Guilds is excited to offer a package including an end-to-end e-learning programme in this space.

This new product combines the complete existing traditional SmartScreen materials with a dedicated e-learning package for the 4290 level 2 qualification. The e-learning programme is the most sophisticated available on the market – more interactive than other products and the only one to currently offer an engine simulation programme. It provides coverage of all nine of the mandatory units within the level 2 qualification to give tutors confidence that the required knowledge is being covered. The e-learning bundle:

- enables delivery of theory through interactive and engaging material, which is preferred by learners to traditional resources
- offers more flexible delivery of demonstrations and other practical tasks by utilising e-learning material – saves time and resource
- means learner progress can be tracked and monitored and homework can be automatically marked
- enables learners to see their progress and scores in the e-learning, allowing them to see what they still have to complete, and where they need to improve
- helps tutors to see any specific areas of weakness that groups of learners may have – which can then be addressed in the classroom/workshop.
