Dear Chris,

EEF The Manufacturers' organisation supports UK manufacturers by providing a combination of business services, government representation and industry intelligence.

We can confirm that the Level 2 Certificate in Manufacturing Practices (601/3036/2) is used within the manufacturing sector in order to provide learners with the underpinning knowledge for the following production line assembly job roles within manufacturing industry

- Manufacturing Process Operator
- Maintenance Operator
- Assembly Operator

This qualification is small in size, however it is valued within the industry and is seen as an important stepping stone for learners who want to progress within the above job roles within manufacturing industry.

We feel that this qualification should be permitted to be funded otherwise learners may be dissuaded from taking this qualification due to the costs involved.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Winebloom
Technical Training Director
